The Program

The Greater Cincinnati Automobile Dealers Association (GCADA) helps fulfill its mission of promoting public safety by providing members opportunities to donate CPR training manikins to Greater Cincinnati non-profit and civic organizations such as hospitals, fire departments, schools, community centers, American Red Cross chapters and YMCAs.

Manikins are provided at no cost to enable organizations to educate and train community members in lifesaving CPR procedures for infants, children and adults.

GCADA has donated more than $40,650 in equipment to more than 46 organizations that have trained an estimated 19,200 people since the program's 2013 inception.

GCADA annually partners with the Greater Cincinnati and Dayton Red Cross along with multiple media partners to illustrate the importance of CPR training by producing a Public Service Announcement that airs in June during the annual CPR and automatic external defibrillator (AED) Awareness Week.

The Manikins

GCADA donates manikins from the Laerdal Medical CPR training line that delivers realistic, high-quality training with live feedback for trainers and trainees.

Groups applying for manikins may choose from several different models to ensure the equipment fulfills specific training needs.

Apply to become a manikin recipient!

Applying is easy and requires completing a simple one-page form.

GCADA reviews all applications and contacts approved applicants to arrange a convenient time to receive manikins at a sponsoring member dealership.
